

University of Portland

School of Education

Assistant Professor of Elementary Education

The School of Education at the University of Portland is seeking candidates for the following tenure-track position at the assistant professor rank beginning in August 2018:

Elementary Education: Includes teaching courses in the School of Education's elementary education certification track in the undergraduate and graduate (MAT) programs, teaching courses in the Reading Intervention and/or English for Speakers of Other Languages endorsement programs, and teaching general education courses in the master's and doctorate programs.

Requirements: Earned doctorate from a regionally accredited institution; at least 3 years successful P-12 teaching experience at the elementary level; an endorsement in reading and/or English for speakers of other languages; knowledge of/experience working with pre-service and in-service teachers; and a potential or requisite scholarly record to warrant appointment at the tenure-track assistant professor rank.

Responsibilities: The faculty member will teach, mentor, and advise students in undergraduate and graduate elementary education, endorsement, and general education courses, engage in doctoral dissertation advisement, conduct a program of applied scholarship and research, and collaborate with colleagues on program and school-wide projects. Preference will be given to candidates who have classroom experience with diverse student populations. Candidates should show a readiness to participate in school/university partnerships and in new initiatives for the purposes of research and teacher preparation.

Applications: Screening of applicants will begin immediately. For full consideration, application materials should be received by November 20, 2017. A cover letter, curriculum vitae, responses to the supplemental questions listed below, contact information for three references (who will be contacted by the HireTouch system and requested to submit letters of recommendation to the system), and unofficial transcripts are required. All application materials must be submitted online at here.

Supplemental Questions:

1. Please describe your successful teaching experiences in P-12 education.
2. Please describe your relevant professional and personal experiences that demonstrate your commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion in teaching, research, and service.
3. The University of Portland (<https://www.up.edu>) is classified as a teaching university. Please describe why working at such a university meets your professional goals.
4. The School of Education (SOED) offers undergraduate and graduate programming, including an applied doctoral (EdD) program (<https://education.up.edu>). Given your professional background and personal experiences, please describe which specific SOED program(s) you think you are best-suited to teach in and why.

Applicants who have a disability and would like to request an accommodation regarding the application or hiring process should contact the University's Human Resources Office at hr@up.edu or (503) 943-8484.

Successful completion of a background investigation check is required before final hiring procedures can be completed.

Founded in 1901, the University of Portland is a private, comprehensive, Catholic university with a mission of teaching and learning, faith and formation, service and leadership. The University of Portland is an equal employment opportunity employer fully dedicated to achieving a diverse faculty and staff. All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply and will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, national or ethnic origin, sex (including pregnancy and gender), religion, physical or mental disability, age, sexual orientation, gender identity, veteran status, marital status, and all other classes protected by law.